Company to Watch
Strathspey Crown Holdings LLC

Strathspey Crown’s subsidiary, Irvine-based Alphaeon Corp., made some significant strides through several deals during the year.

Alphaeon’s acquisitions included a couple of deals that could come to $55 million a piece based on milestones: Clarion Medical Technologies Inc., a Canadian maker of aesthetic medical products; Physician Recommended Nutriceuticals LLC, a Pennsylvania company that develops omega 3-based products to treat dry eye and macular degeneration.

It also acquired TouchMD, a line of software for doctors, for $22 million.

The company also includes Alphaeon Credit, which helps patients finance procedures, and ShoutMD, a social media outlet used by more than 1,200 doctors.

Alphaeon is also aiming for the cosmetic neurotoxin market, a segment dominated by Allergan Inc. flagship Botox. The Food and Drug Administration accepted an investigational new-drug application for its Evosyal.
